

Preparations for September 8th

We have had three very intense days of staff training this week followed by a day at Richmond College getting the classrooms ready for our first day for students. Not being on our own site for this presented some challenges but Team Turing have risen to them! They have just adapted to the situation and thrown themselves into everything I've asked them to do. They can't wait to get started next week!

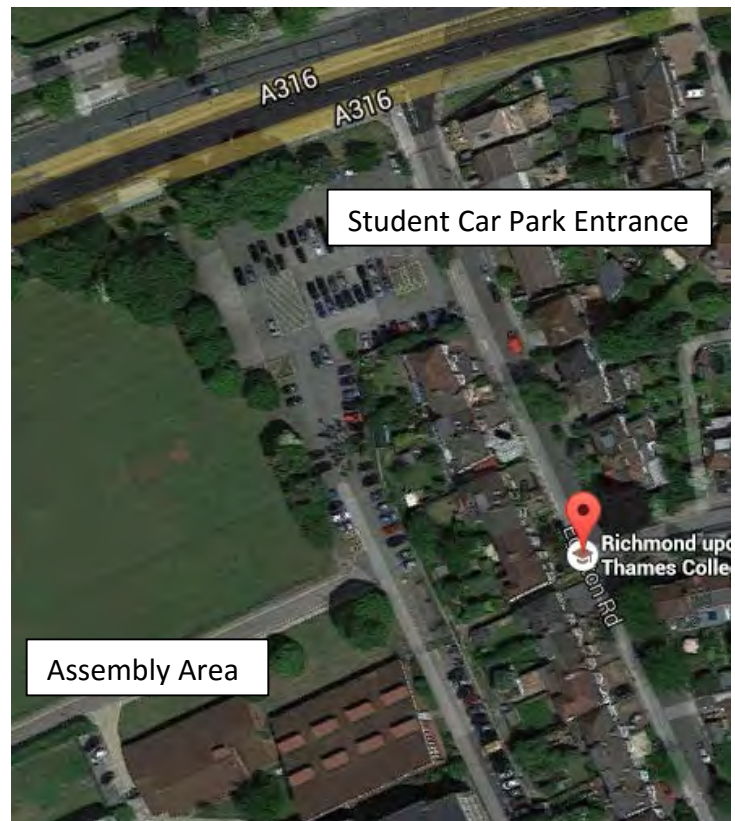

On Monday they will finally get to go on site to familiarise themselves with the school and to have the final day of training using the ICT systems that are in fact being installed at set up this weekend.

Headteacher's Challenge

Thank you to all those of you who have already posted in your Headteacher's Challenge sheets to me. Some of them are now a little dusty having arrived at a building site but I can see how busy you have been. Please do send them in or bring them with you on Tuesday.

Please don't bring any other evidence of your achievements to the college though! We'll look at that once we are in to Turing House.

Spot the Turing House Umbrella

RET Headteachers and CEO Karen Lynch went to a reception at Downing Street with the Prime Minister and Education Secretary this week.

Not to be outdone, Turing House Staff posed with Louie Spence at Rugby Aid for Heroes at The Stoop.
